

Terms of Use and Reproduction Conditions for Visual Material

The provided material may only be used for the agreed purpose.

Any use, exploitation, duplication, distribution, or publication of the provided material is subject to fees and requires the prior explicit permission of the museum. The ordering parties are fully liable for any breach of contract regarding the use of the visual materials.

The right of use is granted upon payment of the agreed fee. Until this payment is made, the rights remain with the museum. Orders from abroad will only be processed upon payment in advance.

Passing the visual material or rights of use to third parties is prohibited. The rights of use are non-transferable. If the agreed right of use is not exercised within two years, it will expire.

Any alteration of the copyright-protected work is not permitted. No modifications may be made to the provided images.

The agreed caption and copyright notice (credit line) must be included with each reproduction. The museum must be clearly credited as the location and owner, as mentioned in the delivery note.

Any third-party rights must be clarified and compensated by the ordering parties themselves. The Kunstmuseum Bern offers no warranty for the availability of these rights.

Ordering parties must provide the Kunstmuseum Bern with at least one complimentary copy of each printed production/publication created using the images, without being requested to do so.

The fee structure of the Image Archive Kunstmuseum Bern determines the costs. Information on fees is available upon request.

The place of jurisdiction is Bern. Swiss law applies to deliveries abroad.

Please understand that, depending on the workload, processing your request may take several weeks. New reproductions are created by the specialist staff of the Kunstmuseum Bern only if possible under conservational, restorative, and legal considerations.
